

Rumford Stone extends an open invitation for you to engage with your project to the extent that suits you best. One avenue through which you can do so is by taking part in a post-template digital layout. There is a fee to cover this service and affords you the opportunity to engage in one of the following manners:

- In-Person Interaction:
 - Schedule a visit to our Bow, NH warehouse where you can actively collaborate with our adept layout technician in crafting the layout.
- Email Engagement:
 - Alternatively, we can furnish you with two layout options via email, presenting you with the choice to select the one that resonates with your vision for approval.
- Virtual Participation:
 - For those situated at a distance, we can arrange a session through Zoom, Teams, or Facetime. This virtual encounter allows you to partake in the layout process while conveniently situated at your remote location.

The post-template digital layout process entails certain time considerations that should be taken into account.

Here are some key points to bear in mind:

- In-Person Layout:
 - Schedule the in-person layout appointment for the day immediately following the template date. Approval for the layout selection should occur during the appointment.
- Email Layout Options:
 - The email containing layout alternatives will be dispatched on the day subsequent to the template date, typically between noon and 3 pm. To ensure the project remains on track for production, it is essential that the layout is approved by the close of business on the same day.
- Virtual Layout Appointment:
 - Similarly, for the virtual layout session, arrange for it to take place on the day following the template date. The layout selection should be finalized and approved during this virtual interaction.

SETTING EXPECTATIONS - DIGITAL LAYOUTS

Vein Match Expectations:

While every effort is made to align the veins seamlessly, it's important to acknowledge that the inherent nature of stone cutting may prevent absolute perfection. This is elaborated upon in our guide on Managing Expectations with Mitered Edges. Rest assured, even with slight variations, the end result is bound to be visually stunning. Should your vision demand an impeccable vein match, it might be prudent to consider obtaining additional slab material, ensuring the realization of your desired aesthetic.
